With its many rivers and its natural hot springs used by Native people for immemorial times, the beautiful Kootenay area is still quiet and unspoilt, away from the usual tourist routes in the Rockies.

craggy ridges, you will see famous Mt. Assiniboine in the distance.

An outdoor enthusiast's paradise, our ecolodge offers canoe and hiking adventures. You arrive on Tuesday afternoon in time to settle and enjoy dinner.

The following day, is spent on a wonderful paddling trip to the Columbia Wetlands, exploring this unique natural environment and bird watching.

On Wednesday, you paddle the Kootenay River in SOAR inflatable canoes, which add to the safety and allow less skilled paddlers to enjoy this route. Along the way, you may spot bald eagles soaring overhead and perhaps even a wolf on the shoreline. You will pass unique natural features such as tufa deposits and wind and water-sculpted hoodoos. Easy class I and II whitewater is appropriate for novice and intermediate paddlers.

On Friday, you can either hike the Cochrane Creek route or enjoy a more leisurely walk on trails around the ecolodge.

Each night you return to the Lodge for a hot tub or sauna and a delicious dinner.

Your adventure ends after a hearty breakfast on Saturday.

On Thursday, you hike up to a Ridge. This starts with an ascent along the border of Kootenay National Park. Reaching the tree line fairly quickly, you start to get panoramic views of the surrounding mountains. Passing through larch stands and onto
